ALLIED COUNCIL IS VIRTUAL C. K. FOR CZECH GOVERNMENT

Reply of Big Four to Kolchak Repeats Promise of Support Offered in First Letter Written by Council.

PARIS, June 13. (By the Associated Press.)—The reply by the council of four yesterday to the note of Admiral Kolchak extends to him and his associates in the all-Russian government at Omsk, the support set forth in the original letter of the council to Kolchak. This is reiterated here as meaning de facto recognition of the Omsk government.

Following is the text of the dispatch originally sent to Admiral Kolchak: "Paris, May 26, 1918.

"The allied and associated powers feel that the time has come when it is necessary for them once more to make clear the policy they propose to pursue in regard to Russia.

"It has always been a cardinal axiom of the allied and associated powers to avoid interference in the internal affairs of Russia. Their original intention was made for the sole purpose of assisting those elements in Russia which wanted to continue the struggle against German autocracy and to free their country from German rule, and in order to rescue the Czechoslovaks from the danger of annihilation at the hands of the Bolshevik forces.

"Since the signature of the armistice, on Nov. 11, 1918, they have kept forces in various parts of Russia. Munitions and supplies have been sent to assist those associated with them at a very considerable cost. No sooner, however, did the peace conference assemble than they endeavored to bring peace and order to Russia by inviting representatives of all the warring governments within Russia to meet them in the hope that they might be able to arrange a permanent solution of the Russian problem.

Cause of Failure. "This proposal and a later offer to relieve the distress among the suffering millions of Russia, broken down through the refusal of the soviet government to accept the fundamental conditions of suspending hostilities, while negotiations for the work of relief were proceeding.

"Some of the allied and associated governments are now being pressed to withdraw their troops and to incur no further expense in Russia, on the ground that continued intervention shows no prospect of producing any settlement. They are prepared, however, to continue their assistance on the lines laid down below, provided they are satisfied that it will really help the Russian people to liberty, self government and peace.

"The allied and associated governments now wish to declare formally that the object of their policy is to restore peace within Russia by enabling the Russian people to resume control of their own affairs through the instrumentality of a freely elected constituent assembly, and to restore peace along its frontiers by arranging for the settlement of disputes in regard to the boundaries of the Russian state and its relations with its neighbors through the peaceful arbitration of the league of nations.

"They are convinced by their experience of the last 12 months that it is not possible to attain these ends by dealing with the soviet government of Moscow. They are therefore disposed to assist this government of Admiral Kolchak and his associates with munitions, supplies and food to establish themselves as the government of all Russia, provided they receive from them definite guarantees that their policy has the same object in view as of the allied and associated powers.

"With this object in view, they would ask Admiral Kolchak and his associates whether they will agree to the following as the conditions upon which they would accept continued assistance from the allied and associated powers.

Eight Conditions.

"In the first place, that as soon as they reach Moscow they will summon a constituent assembly elected by a free, secret and democratic franchise, as the supreme legislature for Russia to which the government of Russia must be responsible, or, if at that time, order is not sufficiently restored, they will summon the constituent assembly, elected in 1917, to sit until such time as new elections are possible.

"Secondly, that throughout the areas which they at present control, they will permit free elections in the normal course for all local and legally constituted assemblies, such as municipalities, zemstvos, etc.

"Thirdly, that they will countenance no attempt to revise the special privilege of any class or order in Russia. The allied and associated powers have noted with satisfaction the solemn declaration made by Admiral Kolchak and his associates that they have no intention of restoring the former land system.

"They feel that the principles to be followed in the solution of this and other internal questions must be left to the free decision of the Russian constituent assembly; but they wish to be assured that those whom they are prepared to assist are not for the civil and religious liberty of all Russian citizens and will make no attempt to reintroduce the regime which the revolution has destroyed.

"Fourthly, that the independence of Finland and Poland be recognized and that in the event of the frontiers and other relations between Russia and those countries being settled by agreement they will be referred to the arbitration of the league of nations.

"Fifthly, that the relations of Russia with the Baltic states, Latvia, Lithuania and the Caucasian and Trans-Caspian territories, and Russia, not specially reached by agreement, be settled by the league of nations and that until such settlement is made the government of Russia agrees to recognize these territories as autonomous and to confirm the relations which may exist between their defunct governments and the allied and associated governments.

"Sixthly, that the right of the peace conference to determine the future of the Rumania part of Bessarabia be recognized.

"Seventhly, that as soon as a government for Russia has been constituted on a democratic basis, Russia should join the league of nations and co-operate with the other members in the limitation of armaments and other military organizations throughout the world.

"Finally, that they abide by the declaration made by Admiral Kolchak on Nov. 17, 1918, in relation to Russia's national debt.

"The allied and associated powers will be glad to learn as soon as possible whether the government of Admiral Kolchak and his associates is prepared to accept the conditions set forth above in the event of acceptance they will undertake to form a single government and army command as soon as the military situation makes it possible.

MOTHER'S BREAD! The olden days when domestic labor was domestic joy; when the finest little woman in the world rolled into that sweet-smelling loaf the fragrant savor of her own sweetness; when the loaf was like its maker—pure, clean, wholesome!

Mother baked her bread in big loaves. Big loaves are better grained and better flavored. They hold their moisture better. They mean economy. Mother knew it. She knows it today and buys the big loaf of Betsy Ross.

She saves herself the toil. She gets bigger bread value than she could put into a loaf at equal expense. She does her duty by society and her family. For the big loaf saves. Saves materials, saves labor, and saves the family purse. Thrift is a peace-time as well as a war-time virtue.

BERGER HEARING IS ADJOURNED

Delay Until July 7 Taken at the Request of Indicted Man.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—After Milwaukee Leader editorial, which led to the indictment of Victor Berger for violation of the espionage act, had been put into the record yesterday the house special elections committee, investigating his right to a seat in the house, adjourned hearings until July 7.

Adjournment was taken at Mr. Berger's request in order to give him opportunity to prepare evidence to meet charges of inciting to insurrection. Mr. Berger, counsel for Berger, asked the committee to put immediately before the house his challenge to its jurisdiction. There was no intimation, however, that this would be done now. Mr. Berger contended that if his point was sustained it would be unnecessary to go through with a long and tedious hearing.

With the editorials from the Leader, Harry R. McLogan, counsel for Joseph C. Carney, who is contesting the election, submitted the national Socialist party platform, partly framed by Mr. Berger, and which showed, he contended, that the member-elect from the Fifth Wisconsin district had given aid and comfort to the enemy by attempting to obstruct the operation of the American machinery of war.

Mr. McLogan in the course of his argument charged that the Socialist convention was composed largely of representative alien enemies which Henry F. Cochems, counsel for Mr. Berger, sharply denied. Mr. Cochems told the committee that at Chicago an attempt had been made to indict the entire personnel of the convention and that it had failed completely.

"Nevertheless," said Mr. McLogan, "half of the convention delegates were alien enemies, and I ask Mr. Berger if it isn't a fact."

"It isn't a fact," Mr. Berger replied with heat, breaking into the hearing for the first time since it opened. One of the editorials written by Berger was headed "The Screaming Eagle" and aimed at Representative Eagle, Democrat of Texas, a member of the committee, because of an attack by him in the house on the proclamation of the Socialist party. The editorial recalled that Mr. Eagle was particularly violent in his criticism of the platform.
